The whole process of deciding to paint our house and then dealing with the picking of colors, waiting on the painters to arrive, and then making sure that the workers are doing a good job is your typical stressful time.

To Whom It May Concern:

The whole process of deciding to paint our house and then dealing with the picking of colors, waiting on the painters to arrive, and then making sure that the workers are doing a good job is your typical stressful time.

But I must say if it wasn't for Aaron Pecho, our lead on the project, we would not have ended up happy. Our house looks great. We had a few problems with having to have a second coat put on in certain areas, and the color not being quite right on the trim but all in all the workers did a very good job.

Sincerely,
